OFFICE OF IMPROBABLE JURISDICTION
Department of Unexpected Civic Participation and Uncooperative Digital Infrastructure

INCIDENT REPORT: OIJ–PORTAL–001

STATUS: Open — Pending Successful Transmission.

SUBJECT: The Citizen Who Attempted to Use the Form

INITIAL CONDITION: Existential dread concerning medical definitions of death.

EXPECTED BEHAVIOR: Anxiety, perhaps followed by an internet search.

OBSERVED BEHAVIOR:

Citizen reviewed approximately forty-five years of medical and legal developments.

Citizen examined competing professional interpretations of irreversibility.

Citizen prepared an extensive written argument.

Citizen elected to submit the argument through the public-comment mechanism expressly provided for that purpose.

The mechanism declined.

PRELIMINARY TECHNICAL FINDING:

The system appears to have confused successful civic engagement with an exceptional condition.

ADDITIONAL OBSERVATION:

The citizen has previously demonstrated a willingness to investigate institutions whose ordinary operations were presumed to be functioning.

The Office notes that this tendency has now extended to the institution's own means of receiving investigations.

RECOMMENDATION:

Repair the form.

SUPPLEMENTAL RECOMMENDATION:

Do not ask the citizen to submit a bug report through the same form.

FINAL OBSERVATION:

The Office acknowledges that the original existential dread appears to have been substantially displaced by administrative irritation.

This development is provisionally classified as a successful emotional intervention.

No clinical endorsement is implied.
